Trends from Designer Showcase '09

September 30, 2009 By VALERIE KELLOGG valerie.kellogg@newsday.com

Each show house always comes with a set of rules for the decorators. At the Designers' Showcase '09, there were several, imposed either by the owner, the organizer or the decorators themselves.

None of the original bathroom tiles or plumbing could be changed, according to the owner's wishes. The bathrooms in the house, which is on the market for $14.5 million, feature the original white subway tiles, which were steam cleaned. The decorators came up with solutions such as using an antique commode chair in Manhattan designer Valerie Onor's upstairs bathroom.
